

IAMR Occasional Paper No. 3/2010

THE COST AND FINANCING OF THE RIGHT TO EDUCATION IN INDIA: CAN WE FILL THE FINANCING GAP?

Santosh Mehrotra

Institute of Applied Manpower Research Planning Commission, Government of India

Santosh Mehrotra is Director-General, Institute of Applied Manpower Research, an autonomous research institute of the Planning Commission, with the rank of Secretary to the Government of India. He was earlier with the Planning Commission, where he was Head of the Rural Development Division and Economic Adviser for the social sectors, (2006-08), and Head of the Development Policy Division (2008-09). He was a lead author of India's 11th Five Year Plan (2007-12). He also led the team that wrote India's Human Development Report 2011, only the second national HDR.

He is a human development economist, and his research interests have spanned industry and trade issues, the impact of macro-economic policy on health and education, the informal sector, and the economics of health and education. He has given lectures on these issues at Cambridge University, Oxford University, University of Florence (Italy), Nankai University (Tianjin, China), and other universities and research institutes around the world. Dr. Mehrotra holds a three-year appointment as Parkin Visiting Professor, Centre for International Development, University of Bath, UK.

He was Regional Economic Advisor for Poverty, Regional Centre for Asia, United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), Bangkok (2005-06), and chief economist of the global Human Development Report, UNDP, New York (2002-2005). He also led research programme on developing countries at UNICEF's global research institute, the Innocenti Research Centre, Florence, Italy (1999-2002). After an MA in Economics from the New School for Social Research, New York, and Phd from Cambridge University (1985), he was Associate Professor of Economics, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi (1988-1991). Since then he has been 15 years with the UN, as a policy advisor to developing country governments.

His books include: India and the Soviet Union: Trade and Technology Transfer (Cambridge University Press, 1990); Development with a Human Face: Experiences in Social Achievement and Economic Growth (Oxford University Press, 1997); Le Developpement a Visage Humain (Economica, Paris, 2001); Universalizing Elementary Education in India: Uncaging the Tiger Economy (Oxford University Press, 2005); The Economics of Elementary Education in India (Sage, 2006). Two co-authored books were published in 2007: Asian Informal Workers: Global Risks, Local Protection (Routledge, London), and Eliminating Human Poverty: Macro-economic and Social Policies for Equitable Growth (Zed, London). Three more books are forthcoming: Skill Development and Vocational Training in India: Realising the Demographic Dividend (Oxford University Press); Land Policies for Agricultural Growth with Equity: Transforming Agrarian Structures in Uttar Pradesh (Sage); and Policies to Achieve Inclusive Growth in India (Cambridge University Press).

This paper is a reprint of the 2010 version in February, 2013.

